HOUSE OF EUROPEAN HISTORY

A shared past
in one museum

HOUSE OF EUROPEAN HISTORY

An initiative of the European Parliament

Discover the House of European History – the only museum that displays Europe’s vast history from multiple perspectives.

Originally built in 1935 as a dental clinic for disadvantaged children, today the museum invites you to step outside your national history and take a thought-provoking journey through the main events and phenomena that united and divided Europeans in the 19th and 20th century.

Using a handheld multimedia guide in 24 languages, experience some of the historical events that continue to shape and influence Europeans’ lives today through objects, videos and narration.

Join us onsite at the museum, or remotely on our Virtual Tour to connect to Europe’s past, understand its present and question the future.

PERMANENT EXHIBITION

Starting with the ancient myth of Europa, through World Wars, political and social change, the process of European Integration and continuing up to modern day, the permanent exhibition displays different perspectives on life in Europe and invites visitors to reflect on and question the continent’s shared heritage.

The exhibition is suitable for the whole family with interactive discovery spaces for children located on each floor.

SHAPING EUROPE

Discover more about Europe and what distinguishes it from other continents through ancient myths, maps and shared heritage.

EUROPE: A GLOBAL POWER

The revolutionary period of the 19th century resulted in a significant period of change and the transformation of many people’s lives. With the Industrial Revolution, came rapid advancements in science, technology and the markets, which pushed forward Europe’s global expansion and exploitation of colonial empires.

Discover however, how by the end of the century Europe had already reached the peak of its global power.

EUROPE IN RUINS

Europe entered the most murderous century in the continent’s history. The traumatic and unprecedented destruction profoundly impacted Europeans for years to come.

Learn about the events that led to the loss of millions of lives including the first industrialised mass war, the rise of nationalism and totalitarianism in the interwar period and the escalation of the Second World War into a “total war”, which removed the distinction between soldiers and civilians.

REBUILDING A DIVIDED CONTINENT

In 1945 Europe was in ruins and although the Second World War had ended, the Cold War had already begun.

Explore more about Europe’s post war period including the initial silence and non-recognition of the Shoah and how Europeans’ living conditions improved substantially with the introduction of the welfare state – even with the remarkable differences between market and state economies in the East and West.

SHATTERING CERTAINTIES

Europe’s post-war boom came to an abrupt end in the 1970s and new social movements challenged the political order.

Decades of social and economic turmoil reinforced democracy in Western Europe while putting communism under pressure in Central and Eastern Europe.

With the end of the Cold War, Germany’s reunification and the war in Yugoslavia, see how the map of Europe transformed again and discover how the archives and files once locked away during the communist era soon revealed people’s repressed experiences and memories – which changed the interpretation of our history.

MILESTONES OF EUROPEAN INTEGRATION

From the Congress of Europe in 1948 to the debate on a European Constitution in the 2000s, the European integration process deepened significantly.

Discover how European countries gradually learned how to cooperate at a supranational level after the Second World War.

EUROPE NOW

Headlines of our time and recent history are a reflection of Europe today. Explore the many challenges Europeans currently face today such as climate change, Brexit and colonial heritage, while reflecting on Europe’s core values.

TEMPORARY EXHIBITION

Each year, the museum creates a temporary exhibition that delves into a more specific theme or period of European history. This way we can display specific elements of Europe’s story in a more in-depth, innovative and creative exhibition which appeals to different audiences.
